Sewer Cave-in At Orland Catches Two Workers — One Killed

Don't Dig Until Location Of Gas Mains Are Known, Builders Told

The Illinois commerce commission may recommend that county and municipal governments display or submit maps of all underground installations before issuing permits to individuals or contractors planning to excavate anywhere in the Chicago area.

This statement was made by Joseph C. Schmitt, ICC utility engineer.

He believes the rapid growth of suburban towns and subdivisions has left less space for pipes and power lines above ground.

Utility company officials are gravely concerned about the loss of life and property resulting from excavators hitting gas mains and other utility lines.

The most recent example of the seriousness of excavating without first determining location of utility lines is the demolition of a home in Mundelein by a gas explosion caused when a gas line was broken during installation of a water main across the street.

Would Avoid Accidents

A utility line explosion in Roselle last January killed eight persons and injured eight.

The Illinois commerce commission in an effort to avoid such accidents has called a conference with major utility company officials to formulate plans to inform other utility companies and private contractors of exact locations of underground utility facilities.

In this area, information of the location of gas mains and service pipes, may be obtained by calling the Northern Illinois Gas company collect at any of the following exchanges or the number in your telephone directory and asking for extension 233 or 237: Fulton 8-4300, Skyline 5-2300, Fieldbrook 9-0295, or Edison 1-6900.

The Gas company in the interest of protecting the public, will be glad to cooperate with excavators in locating their underground facilities before starting work. The problem is very serious, officials state, because of the large amount of construction work in the area.

Finds Skeleton In Orland Field

Cook county authorities are holding a collection of bones at the morgue that were found last Monday afternoon by a hunter, about a quarter mile west of the junction of Wolf road and U. S. 6 in Orland township.

The bones formed part of a skeleton of what is believed to have been a man. They were strewn over a distance of more than 50 yards on ground lying between U. S. 6 and the Wabash tracks.

The find was made by Edward Adams, 42, a house painter who resides on 115th ave., Mokena. Adams had gone out Monday afternoon to hunt pheasants. He found the bones in several places.

Seeks Names of Servicemen for VFW Christmas List

The Mokena VFW auxiliary would like to know the names of servicemen located here and abroad in order to send them gifts of candy at Christmas. Their names should be submitted by calling Mrs. Helen Murphy, Mokena 5130 or Mrs. Anton Benson, Mokena 2601.

Toys, baby clothes, children's clothes, notions, gift items, baked goods and Christmas cards. Gifts may be procured for everyone in the family from the youngest to the eldest. Mrs. Merle Otto, in charge of the bazaar, invites everyone to do Christmas shopping early.

Tickets may be purchased at the door from Mrs. Frank Heisner or Mrs. Ervin Schellhase.

RESCUERS REACH CAVE-IN VICTIMS—In the extreme lower left hand corner of the top picture is Joseph Pezzetta, Jr., a cloth covering his shoulders and part of his head. Pezzetta was killed in the cave-in of a 30 foot sewer in Orland Park Hills development at Orland Park. A fellow worker, Mario Liberatorre, was found alive beneath Pezzetta's body and is recovering. The bottom picture shows Fr. Frank Coyle administering last rites of the Roman Catholic church to Sam Pezzetta, an older brother of Joseph, following his collapse during rescue operations. For a short time it was believed he was dying. He recovered but does have a broken arm. The man with the hat was not identified. (Dorothy Douglas photo).

Advises Zoning Board To Zone And Leave Liquor Control To Others

(CNS)—Commissioner John Duffy has slapped the wrists of the county zoning board, likening it to an unauthorized liquor czar in a rezoning case involving an Orland township lunchroom.

The zoning board Monday recommended the county board deny rezoning which would allow the sale of liquor in a lunchroom operated by Anthony Consola on the east side of Wolf road, about 500 feet south of 171st st.

"The evidence and testimony presented at the public hearing is not convincing that the property in question should be reclassified into the B-2 business, tavern and amusement district," said the zoning board's recommendation.

Duffy demanded a further explanation from Walter Popjoy, zoning board secretary.

Withhold Action

Popjoy said the zoning board had to protect the county's zoning plan in view of the fact that there is no established B-2 district on the corner and that the applicant "made no case for the sale of liquor except for the additional income it would provide."

"The zoning board," Duffy snapped, "has no power to control liquor sales. Its business is zoning."

"Our decision was made on the basis of zoning," Popjoy retorted.

Hours of frantic digging by rescue workers saved the life of a cave-in in a deep sewer trench in the Orland Park Hills housing development at Orland Park. At the point where the tragedy occurred the bottom of the trench was 30 feet below ground level.

Dug in dense clay that is almost rocklike, the big ditch was believed to be as safe as a ditch can be. It was shored with timbers for some 10 or 15 feet from the bottom and the cave-in that caught two workers occurred just above the shoring.

The deluge of earth came all of a sudden. There was no chance for the two men to escape. They were setting tile and cementing the joints just as they had been doing for days. A machine was backfilling the trench where the lines had been laid and another machine was digging ahead. One moment they were in view of their fellow workers up on top. The next they were blotted out of sight by a clay cascade.

Brother Witnesses Tragedy

Joseph Pezzetta, Jr., 29, of 4105 N. Mobile, Chicago, a son of Joseph Senior, who owns the company bearing his name and has the sewer contract at Orland Park Hills, was one of the two bottom men. Joe was the No. 2 man on the job. His brother Sam, the No. 1 man who is in charge of the work, was up on top. The other man below was Mario Liberatorre, 27, of 221 S. Kenneth, Chicago. The other workers call Liberatorre "Murph".

"Murph" went down first and the plunging earth then slammed Joe against a wall of the trench. It shoved him down in a sort of crouch, over Liberatorre. Joe's head shows a crushing injury as if struck by a rock or heavy lump of clay. It was believed that this blow may have brought death. The position of his body, however, formed an air pocket over Liberatorre, and this plus the fact that the 20 feet of earth that covered the two was still loose gave him enough air to survive.

The cave-in occurred about 4:15 o'clock in the afternoon. It was about 7:30—almost four hours later—before rescuers reached the men and lifted them out.

Suffers Broken Leg

Liberatorre has possible internal injuries and was in severe shock. It was first reported that both of his legs and arms were broken but examination at St. Francis hospital, Blue Island revealed that only one leg was broken and there were no fractures of the arms.

Sam Pezzetta, also taken to St. Francis, suffered a broken arm, apparently having been struck by one of the digging machines while he was frantically struggling to uncover the two victims. The broken arm, his furious exertion and shock combined to cause his collapse and for a time it was thought he was dying. Father Frank Coyle of St. Michael's church, Orland Park, administered last rites.

FLU GERM, DON'T BOTHER ME

Actually, it's a little late to be singing that refrain. We, in our family, just recovered from a nine day battle with the obnoxious imposters. (They won... we lost.) With our four children, each taking two days to conquer the fever, we had quite a carnival.

From what I've heard by phone and from friends at committee meetings, the Asian Flu has just about circled our entire village and is probably ready to pass on to greener pastures. It seems those families with the largest number of children have had it first and had it fiercest.

By the time you multiply a family number by two days each, you get two weekends ruined by the languid bedrest. This seems terribly unfair. It could at least have the decency to work weekdays only. Have we no rights?

When we stop and think though of hearing stories about the deadly flu epidemic connected with the First World War we can give thanks our families suffered nothing more than a few chills and loss of appetite. If such an epidemic had swept thru a family community such as ours at that time, we may have found our children's population reduced by one-third. Such thoughts are good to remember in a dark hour. Good and bad fortune are a matter of comparison.

OUT OF THE STORM

One evening last week, the day of the hurricane winds, my door bell rang and there stood a little boy, shivering in a brown leather coat. "Are you the reporter, Mrs. Wilson?" he asked, his teeth chattering. "Yes, I am," I replied, ushering him in out of the cold.

"Well, I've got a report," he said, proudly, emptying his pockets of papers, folding money and a check. "I've been out selling Tinley Park Times subscriptions—and I've sold this many all ready!" He was handling his own funds and receipts (very good training!) "I'm Ray Bergman Jr.," he told me. "Well, I'll see your name gets in the paper," I promised. (And so I have.)

If you have a young boy who would like to earn some extra dollars, call the Tinley Park Times, KE 2-4728. If you want to buy a subscription from a young boy already in the business, call Mrs. Milly Berdan, SY 8-6983.

A LETTER FROM OUR BUILDER

Referring to my column discussing the school district, and projection of future plans for building and population, this letter was sent me on Nov. 5 by Mr. C. W. Leek. I quote this excerpt:

"The figure of 5,000 homes is erroneous and there has never been any authorization of this figure from this office."

"It has never been our intention to build more than 300 homes in a year in the Country Club Hills subdivision..."

Christian Fellowship Dinner

Sunday evening at 6 o'clock the main school building once again came to life. With smiling chattering people, steaming hot foods, and bright lights.

Country Club Hills Christian church sponsored their first evening social gathering...and around 80 people attended! There were three short color movies for the children; a "pep-talk" by a visiting minister, the Rev. Charles Beard, (of the Disciples of Christ church, in Hometown); not to mention a breath-taking smorgasbord family dinner.

First business was the tempting dinner, of course. Children were served milk purchased from church funds. Ham and ground beef were also furnished from church funds. Families brought the other dishes; baked beans, salads, corn, rolls, pies, and cookies. It was a royal feast. Next, there were song games for adults and children together. The Rev. VanBoskirk lead the festivities. Movies for the children were shown in a second room while the adults had their social and business hour in the front room.

Country Club Hills Christian church welcomes families of all religious backgrounds to join in their fellowship activities. The Rev. Mr. VanBoskirk invites all newcomers to attend all services (in the Calendar of Events) and also every social meeting, such as the Fellowship dinner.

Report From Mothers Club Of School

(1) AFTER DINNER MINTS
It's wonderful to report that the Mother's club sold $278 worth of tickets to their smorgasbord dinner in October! Of course that was gross sales. But at that, they now have $453.89 in their treasury. Their expenses will cover their purchase of ham and ground beef for the dinner, rental of the hall, paper dishes, etc.

This coming month they will investigate the needs and wishes of the school staff, then compare prices on merchandise available to meet these needs. At Christmas time, they will present a major gift (or probably several!) to the Coopers Grove school.

(2) BROKEN WINDOWS

Mr. Andrew J. Tobin, principal of Coopers Grove school, spoke to the ladies at their meeting. First, he listed, at their request, a few educational items the school needs badly (such as typewriters, encyclopedias, etc.)

Second, he announced to the mothers that $100 worth of school window glass had been broken to date. The mothers were truly shocked to hear of such vandalism and decided they would watch more closely the hour of departure for school property in the morning. (School teachers are only responsible for classes from 9:15 a. m.)

Mr. Tobin pointed out that every teacher requires some free time for his lunch-hour and cannot supervise nor discipline students before class time nor during the lunch hour. This should be the duty of the parent. After all, it is the parents' own money which must replace destroyed materials.

The mothers agreed they would try to prevent future loitering on school grounds by sending older children to the classroom after 9:15 a. m., and insisting evening play be in some other location.

(3) CHRISTMAS STUFFING

The Mothers club will meet at Cavallini's restaurant, 3845 W. 147th, in Midlothian, Wednesday, Dec. 11, for a huge dinner and a socially evening. All new mothers are invited. Each woman pays $3 dutch treat for her dinner.

(4) SOCIAL HOUR

After the business meeting, the ladies had a coffee hour with assorted desserts. The table was set in the entrance lobby of the school, as the 35 ladies present filled the classroom for their business meeting. After refreshments, games were played for about one hour.

BURGLARY

The family of Dick Mulderink, 182nd and Anthony, had just left their home for two hours on a Sunday evening. (This was about two weeks ago.) When they returned, they found the new front door wrecked, every room of furnishings disheveled and ruined, furniture overturned, and jewelry and silver dollars stolen!

They had only been gone from 5 to 7 in the evening!

This brings to mind an observation I made while riding down our village streets after dark last week. Our houses are dark. Our streets are dark. In fact, some entire blocks of houses huddle in a continuous row of blackened yards and entrances.

Why did the builder provide us with veranda lights? Every house is built with one beside the front door. What a simple precaution to take against crime and fear!

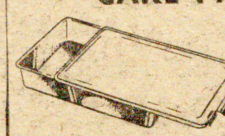

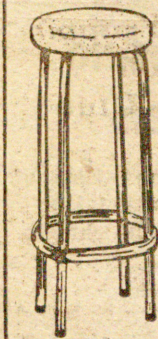

Can we not, every one of us, swear that we will switch on that little veranda light when darkness comes? Can we not in

MUST MAKE CHOICE

During Queen Elizabeth II's visit to this country she was taken, at her request, to see a football game between two leading universities. The governor of a state was her host. When the teams ran onto the field to start the game, and AP account says, the queen asked: "Where do you get all these players?" The governor answered: "Your Majesty, that is a very embarrassing question."

On the surface, certainly, there is absolutely no connection between this little incident and the history-making launching of Sputnik, the Soviet earth satellite. But surface isn't all, and if one digs a bit deeper a relationship which may have the highest importance appears.

The governor's answer to the puzzled queen simply underlined what everyone knows—that major college football (and, to a somewhat lesser but still significant extent, other crowd-attracting athletic contests) has become big business, with certain rare and honorable exception. Promising player are "bought" in a multitude of devious ways. Many alumni, apparently seem to think that the first duty of higher education is to produce winning teams capable of filling multi-million-dollar stadia that would have impressed the Caesars.

And what has all this to do with Soviet scientific achievements Sputnik symbolizes?

The Portland Oregonian observes that Sputnik's debut resulted in an "orgy of recrimination", with Democrats blaming the republican administration, and the Republican administration blaming the Democratic congress and so on. Then the paper continues: "But is there not a wider responsibility? The American people, themselves, have in fact willed the state of affairs that made possible this Russian triumph. . . . Who gets the higher salary on the college faculty . . . the head of the physics department or the athletic director?"

This question carries a built-in answer. The top coaches get salaries and emoluments on a scale that must make physicists and other scientists of the first caliber blink their eyes in astonishment. And what is true of athletics, needless to say, is true of other callings, notably the entertainers who get five-figure fees for singing a song or two.

It may be said at this point that the logical deduction is that we can keep pace with the Russians only by doing as the Russians do—that is, by a forced concentration on science. But there is no evidence, much less proof, that this is so. The accomplishments of the free peoples of the world in every field of science, over the centuries, refute that theory.

What it comes down to, in the view of many, is a question of values—of what we want most; of what is most important to us. To quote the Oregonian again: "Unless Americans choose to alter some of their basic values, there appears to be a good chance that they may lose freedom of choice with respect to life's values and everything else." Senator Bridges, in commenting on the meaning of Sputnik, put the same idea in plain and earthy terms when he said: "The time has clearly come to be less concerned with the depth of the pile on the new broadloom rug or the height of the tail fin on the new car and to be more prepared to shed blood, sweat and tears if this country and the free world are to survive."

LAST STRAW

The Saturday Evening Post has something worthwhile to say about socialized electric power, using the Tennessee Valley Authority as an example.

That magazine observes in a lead editorial: "What millions of Americans have scarcely noticed is the development of TVA from a Federal project to utilize water power for a variety of purposes into a gigantic power monopoly dependent for more than half its output on steam plants and not on water power at all. Just why the taxpayers of the nation should be expected to finance the expansion of steam-produced electric power in competition with private industry cannot be explained by the purposes for which TVA was created—namely, development of the hydroelectric resources of the area."

What has happened, in other words, is that TVA—using the money of all the taxpayers, and operating on a virtually tax-free basis—has grown to an extent that would have amazed those who advocated it in the beginning. And that always happens when the government goes into business on one pretext or another. There are no limits to the ambitions of the socialists and the socialist-minded—and no limits to the amount of public money they are eager to spend in the march toward a totalitarian state.

The next great step forward in power development lies in generation from nuclear sources. And the socialists are churning at the bit at the thought of this,

A bill has been passed providing for government construction of four atomic reactors. And the danger is expressed by the Post in these words: "While the statute limits such projects to those specifically named, it does create a precedent for further invasion of private power by the Government. A string of little TVA's—could be the last straw. In view of the extraordinary technical progress now being made by private industry in the electric-power field, it is difficult to see any reason why the Government should invade it."

Your generous cooperation has made possible the speedy completion of the new 230-mile section of the Texas Eastern pipeline between Seymour, Indiana, and Chicago. Soon, gasoline, liquefied petroleum gases—propane and butane—and many other refined oil products will be flowing through the line from the great refineries of Texas and neighboring states.

This new line provides fast, direct, all-weather shipments and opens an entire new source of petroleum products to residents of this area.

Laying of the line has been an inconvenience to many of you. We are sorry about that. But with completion of the line you will hardly be aware of its existence. In a comparatively short time signs of construction will have disappeared.

The Texas Easterners who remain among you are members of the permanent operating and maintenance staff. Texas Eastern, too, now takes its place as a neighbor and citizen of your county.

Seymour-Chicago Lateral brings total length of Texas Eastern natural gas and oil products pipeline system to more than 7,600 miles.

LOOK LIKE STARTERS—at least that is the present feeling of Bremen's basketball coach, Bill Brown, as he contemplates his 1957-58 squad. The talent pictured here turned in good performances last year and Brown expects they will be his starting line-up, unless of course, some of the others show more stuff between now and the beginning of the season. Left to right are, Gary DuBois, of Oak Forest, a guard; Rich Tindall, of Tinley Park, a forward; Luke Smith, of Midlothian, center, (a substitute last year); Dale Hartwig, Tinley, a forward and Jerry O'Neill, also of Tinley, a guard. Begin Tryouts For Places On Mat Squads At Lincoln-Way; 45 Report

With wintry blasts sweeping high school campuses the athletes have deserted the playing fields for gymnasiums and one of the most popular of the indoor sports in the Southwest Suburban conference — besides basketball — is wrestling.

The wrestlers grunt and strain from late fall to spring when track and baseball come into their own. Lincoln-Way has a new wrestling coach this year, Ron Larsen and 45 boys have turned out for the sport. Twelve of them are seniors, three are juniors, 12 are sophomore and 18 are freshmen.

All are vying for places on the varsity but those sophomores and freshman who don't make it will have ample opportunity to wrestle on the frosh-soph team.

Fourteen matches have been scheduled for the 1958-59 season and they are arranged as follows:

Mokena To Open Cage League Play Next Thursday Against New Lenox

The 1957-58 DesPlaines Valley conference basketball season promises to get off to a rousing start when Mokena's defending champions open the season against the always dangerous New Lenox teams at New Lenox next Thursday, Nov. 21. Mokena's Meteors (heavyweights) won the conference championship last year with a record of 11 victories and only 1 defeat. The Meteorites (lightweights) shared conference honors with New Lenox as both schools finished with identical records of 10 wins and 2 losses.

The DesPlaines Valley Conference has expanded to a nine team league this year with the addition of Rockdale. Each team in the conference plays 12 games meeting some opponents twice and others only once as predetermined by a drawing. Mokena meets New Lenox, Laraway, Manhattan, and Troy twice but faces Frankfort, Elwood, Channahon, and Rockdale only once.

The strength of the conference should be well defined before Christmas because Mokena will meet both New Lenox and Laraway away from home before playing before a home crowd. Both New Lenox and Laraway together with Rockdale, Channahon, and Troy appear to be threats to Mokena's chance of retaining the championship. The only Meteorites who return to play with any experience are Jerry Sayers and Steve Smith. Both boys are excellent players but are small. The new material does not hold much promise with regard to the height problem, it was said. This appears to be the poorest outlook for a lightweight team since he came here five years ago, Coach Jim Wrath said.

Open Season on Meteors

The Meteors are sure to be the object of everyone's attention this year because of their outstanding record last season. Last year's team posted the finest record of any team to represent Mokena in the school's history. They captured the conference championship, the Taft invitational tourney at Lockport, and the New Lenox heavy-weight tourney while posting a remarkable record of 17 victories and 1 defeat. Every team will be out to knock them of this year.

Only one boy returns from last year's champions, Ronny Yunker, he played an outstanding center each game and will be the one that this year's team must be built around. The remainder of the squad will be made up of last year's lightweights. Mark Muehler, Joe Johnson, and Dan Williams appear to have starting assignments clinched. There is a fight on for the fifth position between Ronny Badten, Bill Alexander, Gerald Daugherty, and Bob Peterson.

Will Miss Kruzich

Since most of Mokena's power has been lost thru graduation, the league should be more evenly matched than a year ago. The Meteors will especially miss the sharp shooting of Skip Kruzich who led all scorers each year he played. Players of his ability come along only once or twice in a coaches lifetime.

The season schedule follows:

TALENT REWARDED—Joyce Anderson, Tinley Park, whose poster, dealing with the employment of the physically handicapped, is on display at Tribune tower, as one of the best in the state, is displaying two other prize winning posters, the work of two of her friends and classmates. Kay Swisher, Tinley Park, winner of first prize in the south Cook county area ("It's The American Way") was ill with flu when this picture was taken. The other girl, Donna Larson, winner of second prize, was formerly of Tinley but now resides at Oak Lawn. The three girls painted the posters when they were eighth grade pupils in Tinley Park school last spring. They are now freshmen in high school. Joyce and Kay at Bremen, and Donna at Oak Lawn. COUNTRY CLUB HILLS—vest a few pennies a month to protect our property? Besides, there is nothing so cheery to those passing by as a welcoming light beaming in the black night. Many a stranger has stopped by our house after dark to find addresses of friends and business contacts. We don't need street lights. We only need that small glow of welcome and protection beside our front doors.

Remember, crime thrives on darkness and silence!

CROSS THE CREEK

Have you noticed the sturdy footbridge that was put up across the creek at the children's bus stop? When school first started, it was a danger point, especially as the very young children, (first three grades) had to stand on the creek bank and wait, often 20 minutes, for the unsure bus. This was on 178th between Thomas and John avenues.

Now the new footbridge has bright red railings and appears strong as iron. That's one more worry removed.

Talking of school again, have you seen the shiny bright metal "Patrol Boys" that now stand on the streets leading to the three village school buildings. They stand life size with raised hand, displaying the word "Slow." Mrs. Thomas, of the Mothers club, wishes to thank Harry's Food Shop for helping us obtain them.

HANG YOUR HAT

Mrs. Lillian Thomas wishes to publicly thank the Merriam company for donating and installing clothing hooks for all the cloak-rooms in our new school buildings. Naturally, this problem was quite distressing to the teachers, as well as the students.

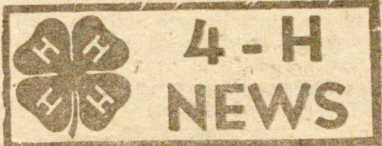

It seems to me a word should be said about the generosity of Mr. Merriam here. From the beginning, the construction firm has been open to any requests and personal calls for help. It is reassuring to know we have not been dumped out on these hills and left to rot by a commercial builder who moves on to new sales and ignores pleas and problems of his previous clients. Such public relation policies as Mr. Merriam's are to be publicly commended. Let us all try to express this gratitude in our personal contact with any representatives of his firm.

Til next week.

BREMEN BEACONS

The Bremen Beacons 4-H met recently in the home of their leader, Mrs. Robert Nelson. Elaine Feiwell gave a talk on how to give a food demonstration; Gay Ann Curry told how to make a sandwich; Patricia Pierce showed how to grill a sandwich; Darlene Phillippo demonstrated how to wrap a sandwich, and Diane Campbell showed how to make a fruit beverage.

On Veteran's Day the girls and their leader visited the North American Mushroom company plant.

Win Honors

The Bremen Beacons and Helping Hands 4-H clubs of Tinley Park were both 100 per cent achievement clubs and were well represented at the 4-H County recognition day Nov. 5.

Helping Hands had an 18 girl membership last year. They had four county project honor members; Maureen Phillippo, Susan Schulien, Dorothy Stelter and Shirley Younker. Shirley Younker was also state project honor member.

Five-year pins were awarded to Louise Bettenhausen and Betty Ann Johnson. Mrs. Nicholas Schulien and Mrs. Leroy Bauman are the leaders.

The Bremen Beacons of which Mrs. Robert Nelson is leader, have completed their first year. They have been working diligently on their projects.

Plan Final Details of Fund Drive for Frankfort F. D.

Final details for the campaign to gain financial support for the Frankfort volunteer fire department to insure protection of the outlying areas are to be worked out next Monday night at a committee meeting to be held at the Frankfort public school.

As it stands the solicitors will be limited to 12 men who will tour the areas outside the Frankfort corporate areas. The village of Frankfort contributed annually to the fire department thru its tax levy.

The department needs a new truck and other supplies in order to protect the outside property and to obtain the necessary funds it is proposed to ask for contributions from the people on farms and in subdivisions

$18 for a farm and $8 for a residence. Special rates that would apply to commercial and industrial properties are to be worked out by the committee next Monday.

4-H Helping Hand Plan Yule Party

The senior division of the Helping Hands 4H club made plans for a Christmas party when they met in the home of Susan Schulien recently.

A talk on flower arrangements was given by Sue Watkins and a demonstration by Betty Ann Johnson of textile painting.

Giving an assist at the meeting were Mrs. Nicholas Schulien and Mrs. R. J. Freund.

SOURCE OF COMPLAINT—between village of Tinley Park and William Graham, owner, is the lot at 17816 Garden st. The village board has ordered Graham to remove the materials and has offered use of a village truck, or authorities will remove and place a lien on the property for the cost of such removal.

SEWER CAVE-IN—

Park, rushed to the scene and with state and Cook county police and men from the NIKE base at Orland began the herculean task of removing the tons of earth that covered the men.

Rescuers Work in Shifts

Digging machinery could be used for some of the work but their scope was confined for the most part to removing earth from the trench after shovel crews had pushed it aside. Not knowing just where the men were buried rescuers feared to bite too deep with the machines. Shifts of 10 men each, armed with spades, the handles of which had been cut short so they were more scraping than digging tools, and therefore less dangerous to the buried men, toiled for hours before their efforts were finally rewarded.

Huge spotlights mounted on cranes, plus lights supplied by the Tinley fire department, illuminated the scene and kept the ditch bright as day.

When the diggers believed they were near the victims fireman Bob Bridge of Tinley Park fed a tube into the earth to carry oxygen down. The process continued until the victims finally were uncovered and played a big part in sustaining life in Liberatorre.

The cave-in took place in a spot in the line where it cuts thru a hill, about a block or two south and west of where the model homes stand on 148th st.

Dance To Aid PTA Program

The one big effort for money raising of the Mokena PTA will be a dance. It will be held this Saturday evening, Nov. 16 in the public school gym from 8 to 12 p.m. The money from the dance will be used to finance the PTA program for the year, and the committee and officers are hoping it will be well attended. Beside helping the monetary cause it will also afford a pleasant evening with friends and neighbors thru the dance program.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Istel are in charge of tickets which they have mailed to all members and which will be available at the door that evening. Mrs. Wendell Hamilton, Mrs. Norval Robinson and Mrs. Thomas Hull are in charge of the decorations.

Mrs. LeRoy Harling, Mrs. Joe Kruzich, Mrs. Ralph Howell, Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Fred Ricketts are on the refreshment committee. The local Teen Tones orchestra will furnish the dance music.

During this same period, the nation's proved reserves have risen from 12 billion barrels to more than 30 billion barrels.

Phi Chem Play At L-W Deals With Outer Space

Science and drama will meet in the Lincoln-Way high school gym tomorrow night and Saturday when the Phi-Chem Association members will present their third annual play, "No Girls Allowed." Completely written and produced by students, the piece is filled with comedy and scientific stunts. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Suddenly into a serene, youthful, neighborhood gang an unexpected visitor arrives from outer space. His ideas and help make it possible for the neighborhood club house to be the scene of the most terrific show ever. After helping the gang with their show and finding what he came to learn the visitor returns home thru a sky crowded with sputniks.

Mark Saunders, played by Gus Fehrenbacher is the leader of the neighborhood gang. Other members of the gang are Jerome Kerns, Jim Stauffenberg; Lardeau, Dennis Becker; Moses O'Reilly, Henry Barnett; and Alexander Bridgmore III, Tony Charvat. The female members of the gang are Pamela Saunders, Kathy Cooper; Patricia McCormick, Gail Osborne; and Mary Lou Blair, Evelyn Rowsell. The visitor from outer space is played by Al Krusemark. Other parts are: Mrs. Saunders, Doris Smith; Mr. Saunders, Richard DeForest; Mrs. Jones, Barbara Machtemes; Aunt Birdie, Petra Reinhard; Mrs. Brown, Beth Rose; and Mr. McGregor, Terry Marshall.

Push Work On New Bridge And Road At Marley

Work on the bridge and the new road to connect Marley with U.S. Route 6 is progressing satisfactorily, thanks to the open fall and delivery of materials, and it is the hope of Will County Highway Engineer James McCarthy that the bridge will be open to traffic sometime in the winter.

Residents of Marley hope that this estimate will be met so they can be "liberated." People of Marley are now isolated. They can see traffic whizzing along Route 6 but the highway might as well be in the next township as far as they are concerned.

To get to Route 6 from Marley one must now travel east on Maple road to Wolf road and then double back to Route 6 over 179th, or go north to where the two highways merge.

Central States Steel of Plain-

A building on the lot occupied by the Graham family for several years, was demolished last April by a court order. Neighbors complain the lot is unsightly and materials are a dangerous hazard to children who might be tempted to play there. This picture was taken last Monday. (Robert Porter photo) field has the contract for the bridge, which will be of concrete with a 24-foot pavement for traffic. The floor of the bridge will be on a level with the Wabash tracks.

Fill for the bridge is being taken from high ground across the highway from Marley school.

The new road from Marley to U.S. 6 winds away from the bridge in a north by west direction and enters the highway at about a right angle. The old road that runs west to Route 6 from the bridge will be closed.

Maple road will be improved east of Marley as soon as the necessary right of way can be purchased to widen the present thoroughfare.

Maple road right-of-way is about 60 feet wide but the state want a right-of-way of 80 feet. The county will obtain the right-of-way. This road, between Wolf road and Route 6 is to be black-topped eventually.

Building Super Mart Near Frankfort

Art Melcher who has operated a grocery store in the Bauch building in Frankfort for several years is building a new super market on the south side of U. S. 30, a block east of U. S. 45.

The building, which is to be of all steel will be a one story structure, 48 by 64 feet and will be completely modern. The cost is estimated at $10,000. The construction of it was started three weeks ago and the walls are now being erected.

Now retailers can literally "go after business." An inflatable store that can be moved anywhere has been developed by industry.

FINDS SKELETON—

eral different places, and after seeing the skull, drove to Mokena and telephoned the Will county sheriff's office. Deputies ascertained that the skeleton was in Cook county and notified authorities there. Cook county police turned the case over to state police of District 3.

State Police Captain Clyde W. Oliver said there was no indication of foul play but the cause of the death, like the identification of the remains, was a mystery. A man's yellow gold wedding ring was found on a finger. Investigators also found the remnants of tan corduroy pants and long underwear, and a heavy wool sweater which once may have been white.

The long underwear, sweater and heavy trousers led investigators to guess that the body may have been there since last spring, winter or even longer.

High water and wildlife may have caused the scattering of the bones, it was said. None of the bones found had been fractured nor was there a bullet hole in any.

Identification from dental charts appears remote as there were no teeth in the upper jaw and the lower jaw was not found.

ADVISES ZONING BOARD—

service committee deferred action in the case on Duffy's motion.

At a public hearing before the zoning board in September, Consola explained that he and his family live in the two-story building which houses the restaurant on the first floor. He said lunchroom profits averaged $60 a week and he wished to sell liquor for additional revenue.

The property is in a B-1 business district. B-2 zoning is needed for sale of liquor.

CROP Leaders To Appear On TV Show Tomorrow

Several Will county residents will appear on the George Menard "Farm Daily" television show tomorrow, Nov. 15. The 6:45 a.m. show is viewed daily over CBS, channel 2, Chicago. The Will County men will appear on behalf of the Christian Rural Overseas Program. They will explain the program and plans for the Will county canvass which will be conducted Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Men scheduled to appear on the program include William Polley of Plainfield, Will County CROP board chairman; Glen Shippy of Peotone, the 1957 CROP canvass chairman; the Rev. E. Dale Kleinschmidt, Trinity Methodist church, Joliet; James Tilsy of Mokena; and the Rev. Ben F. Day, The Frankfort Methodist church.

The plan is to take a load of corn pledged to CROP into the studio and demonstrate a collection scene. The donor of the corn, who has not yet been determined, will also appear on the program.

In addition to the local men Rev. Elvin Frantz, Illinois state CROP director, will also be introduced. Mr. Frantz arranged

Mokena Board Cracks Down On Meter Cheater

Beginning Nov. 24 Mokena residents who have been getting by on payment of minimum water bills on the grounds that the meters are broken or disconnected will be required to pay an average bill.

They also will find that new meters will be installed or the old ones repaired so that hereafter they will be billed according to the amount of water that passes thru the meters.

In the past those with inoperative meters have been getting by on a minimum charge of $10 a year, it was said.

An ordinance setting up the new charges was passed at the regular meeting of the village board on Tuesday.

The board also hired three volunteer policemen who will be paid $1.50 an hour for their tours of duty. The men will be used nights. The three employed are Roy Newton, Joseph Hein and James Beets. All are members of the fire department.

The new policemen will do their patrolling in a village owned squad car. The board plans to purchase a 1955 car from Cooper-Hostert garage, the Mokena Ford agency, for $1,050. The word "police" is to be painted on the vehicle and it also will be equipped with a flasher light and siren. A special meeting is to be held tonight to pass on the proposed purchase.

It was also announced Tuesday night that only eight more applications for sewer service are needed to insure sale of the revenue bonds. The bonds houses have set 300 as the number. There are 292 applications now on file.

Rural Mail Carriers To Honor Retiring Members at Dinner

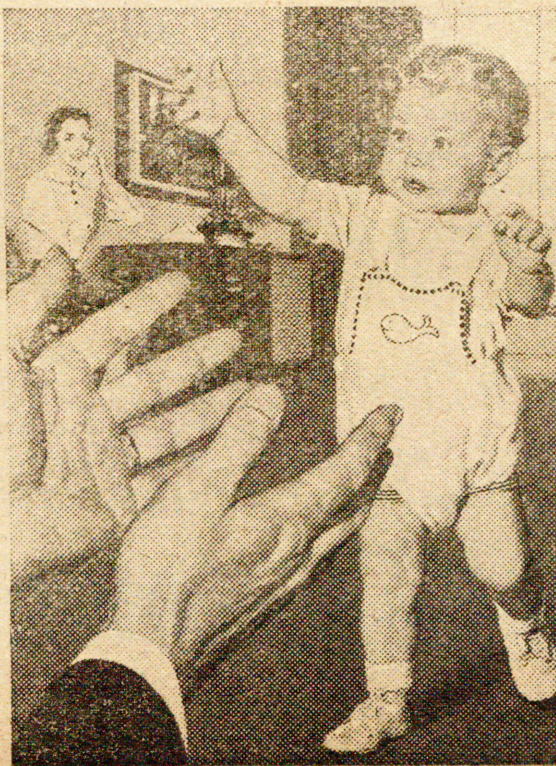

Five retiring rural mail carriers are to receive pins commemorating the event at a dinner to be given in their honor this Saturday night at St. Peter's church, Frankfort, by the Will and Southern Cook county Rural Letter Carriers and Auxiliary Association.

The men to receive retirement pins are Sam Brunner, of Tinley Park, Emmett Leasure, of Manhattan; Robert Heldt, Beecher; George Scheidt, Chicago Heights and Paul Rinke, Mokena. Rinke retired 12 years ago but is to receive his pin at this meeting.

Mr. Heldt of Beecher will be the recipient of two pins, one for this retirement and the other denoting 50 years of service with the postoffice department.

The association president, Kenneth Frazer, of Palos Park, will preside. The secretary, Richard Klett, of Plainfield, also will be there and officials from the Chicago district. The Chicago district embraces five states and business that formerly had to be transacted direct with Washington can be disposed of thru the district.

Fete Volunteers Who Aid Patients at Oak Forest

Oak Forest Hospital saluted their volunteers at the third annual award tea held in the Nurses Residence. Oak Forest is the Cook county hospital devoted to chronic illness, at 159th and Cicero, County Commissioner, James Ashenden presiding, extended the appreciation of Board President Dan Ryan and Commissioners for the splendid service you volunteers render to our fellowmen.

Hospital Superintendent Carl K. Schmidt, Jr., assisted by Mrs. Anne Lindsay, director of the Volunteer Services Dept., presented awards to 77 volunteers in recognition of their service this past year as friendly visitor, shopper, aids to occupational and therapy, library, central sterile supply, nourishment bar, chaplain, psychologist, and as party host, movie supervisor and escort, bedside telephone operator, and director of the patients musical jam sessions.

Mrs. Edith Allen of Worth, Ill., received the 1000 hour highest award pin which bears the seal of Cook County, with an emerald clip, significant of her service hours. She is a chaplain's assistant supervising the teenagers who escort patients to the Protestant chapel Sunday service, men's party host, movie supervisor, friendly visitor and shopper.

On Way to 3,000

Mrs. Mary Cihlar, also of Worth, and already a 1,000 hour pin wearer, received a corsage from Commissioner Ashenden in recognition of the 829 hours she has volunteered this year alone. She is well on her way to the 3000 hour award pin, he said.

Mrs. Amy Buckles of Flossmoor, chairman of the Volunteers Advisory Committee, received her 500 hour pin. She is the bedside telephone operator who help patients call their family and friends. She initiated games, parties, helps with the portable library and letter writing, and feeds patients, just to name a few of her assignments.

Mrs. Lillian Bormet, of Oak Forest and formerly of Tinley Park, has to her credit 636 hours of volunteer service all spent in aiding the central sterile supply. She was awarded the county's 500 hour pin, and nurses from her division presented her with a handbag as a gift of their appreciation.

The 500 hour pins bear a ruby as the significant gem.

15 Hour Award

Emblems for smock sleeves have been awarded as volunteers finished their first 15-hours. There have been many of these volunteers, some for short time service, others who have moved on to larger awards. Many of these volunteers are far beyond 15-hours. The arm emblem represents an in-service training period and, when worn, indicates that volunteer has passed her first training by experience.

Among the volunteers to receive their arm emblems since the Volunteer's Award tea a year ago are: Mrs. Bertha Hecht, of Mokena; Mrs. Helen Novak and Mrs. Louise Kline, of Tinley Park and Mrs. Josephine Leonard and Mrs. Victoria Linton.

The Good Luck Camp of Royal Neighbors will meet in Homer church social rooms Thursday afternoon, Nov. 21 with Mesdames Gertrude Heatherwick, Marjorie Kettman, Mary Konow and Theresa Hemphill as hostesses.

Will county 4H Achievement Day was held at Laraway school Thursday evening, Nov. 7, at which time awards were presented to the members who have completed an approved club project during the past year. Many Homer young people were among the award winners. The Pure Milk Dollar awards which is given to all members who carry on a dairy project, was presented by Bruce Anderson, local Pure Milk president.

A well attended meeting of the Prudential committee of Homer church Thursday evening quite thoroughly discussed arrangements for hiring the Rev. Roy Hanson as a resident pastor and also the repairing and re-decorating of the parsonage. Sunday, the church voted to call the Rev. Mr. Hanson who is in his last year at the seminary. He will commute to school on a part time basis and be available as a full time pastor after June 1958.

The fall festival sponsored by the Missionary society and Mens club last Tuesday evening was well attended and was a social and financial success. Thanks to all who cooperated.

Tuesday evening the Missionary society served supper to the Kudos club and their wives from the First Presbyterian church of Joliet.

Proposes Way To Earn More And Pay Less Taxes

"Would you like to earn more and pay less taxes in 1962? If you would, then two bills introduced during the last session of congress deserve your special consideration," Maurice W. Scott, executive secretary of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois said today.

They are H. R. 6452 introduced by Representative A. N. Sadlak (R. Conn.) and H. R. 9119 by Representative A. S. Herlong, Jr. (D. Fla.) The latter bill is a companion measure introduced to give bi-partisan support to the original measure designed to reduce personal and corporate taxes in a series of steps.

If Mr. Illinois Citizen, filing a joint return with his wife, has a taxable income of $4,000 after he figures all the deductions and exemptions, he now will pay Uncle Sam $800. If, however, the plan originally introduced by Representative Sadlak is passed, he would pay only $600 by 1962. Each year, assuming his taxable income remains the same, he would have paid a little less.

A Gradual Reduction

On the other hand, should Mr. Citizen increase his taxable income to $5,000 by 1962 he would actually pay a smaller tax on a larger income. If during this same five year period the country enjoyed continued prosperity and its present rate of economic growth, Uncle Sam would have the same amount available for spending, and probably a bit more. In other words, the proposed reductions in rates would be offset by the increased revenue resulting from normal economic growth. Rate reductions could be postponed if a deficit occurred.

Under the Sadlak bill a gradual reduction in personal and corporate income tax rates would be possible. The individual tax savings in the last year of the five year program would reach nearly $11 billion that otherwise would be taken from regular date because of Thanksgiving.

the people under current rates of personal taxation. Nearly 60% of the total savings would go to the taxpayer with incomes to $6,000 a year or less, but corporations and other income groups would receive some reduction.

The present combined corporate tax rate, leveled as an emergency measure during the Korean War, would be cut to 42%, which would also be the individual maximum.

"It appears," Scott said, "that these bills are sound and carefully thought out. They certainly merit public consideration."

Sputnik, Muttink And Motor Cars

The latest bulletin from outer space indicates that traffic hazards may be rarer there than in the United States, but our safety record bears up well by comparison. Sputnik No. 1, which was launched on Oct. 4, is traveling at the rate of 432,000 miles per day.

Matthew C. Sielski, director of the Chicago Motor club's safety and traffic engineering dept., computes that if Sputnik No. 1 is still aloft on Nov. 15, it will have traveled a total mileage of 18,200,000 in 42 days. Yet this is merely the equivalent of the number of miles traveled by automobile in the United States which result in one traffic fatality.

Now that Sputnik No. 2 or Muttink is also circling above, with passengers to boot, and apes are getting their tickets to the moon, we can reasonably expect a rise in the space fatality rate, say Sielski. Traffic engin-

Steady Dating Can Be Goofy, Says Writer

By JOSEPH A. BRIEG
(Paulist Feature Service)

I wish that the people who make speeches in which they denounce "steady dating" would define their terms and make careful distinctions.

I fear that many people are coming to feel that a youth must necessarily select a different girl almost every time he goes to a school dance or some such festivity. And that she must select a different boy. But that is not so.

What, in fact, is the nature of the steady dating against which young people are being warned? It is something that ordinarily has a touch of goofiness about it, and can be defined with reasonable accuracy.

It involves young people who are in no position to marry with, in, say a couple of years, or who in any case have no intention of doing so. "Steady dating," properly defined, means that two such people are together a great deal, perhaps a couple of times weekly or oftener, and that frequently they are alone together, or at least accompanied only by one other couple. And they seldom or never make "dates" with other boys or girls.

Lose Identity

Three chief excesses are involved. There is excess in frequency of association, excess in exclusiveness, and excess in aloneness or privacy.

The note of goofiness enters because this over-dating leads to public displays of possessiveness—displays which are ludicrous, ill-mannered and embarrassing to everybody. Perhaps the most depressing effect is the loss of femininity and masculinity. I mean that the young people involved in these excessive attachments tend to lose identity, individuality and distinctiveness.

They become over-dependent on each other. It is as if each were the opium of the other; and both grow dopey.

The girl no longer likes to be with girls. She does not enjoy the special lighthearted fun of female gatherings. She feels incomplete without the chap to whom she has grown fast.

Time For Larking

The young man suffers even more than the young women in these over-attachments, because manliness, of its nature, is more independent than womanliness.

Youth is a time for larking and gregarious gatherings. It is a time for getting acquainted with a great many people; for becoming a familiar and cheerful member of the human family.

Of course, young men and women will still have their preferences. But they must not let them get out of hand. If young people are to become what they really want to be—self-reliant and mature men and women—they will master and control their dating as they master and control other things. They will do some straight thinking about it, and guide themselves accordingly.

Liquefied petroleum gas as a motor fuel increased 30 per cent last year to 850 million gallons. Biggest users are trucks, buses, tractors, and irrigation and drilling engines.

New Hazards Are By-product Of Progress

Progress has a by-product: new hazards.

That's true in traffic safety as well as in other fields, according to Prof. A. H. Easton.

Easton is director of the motor vehicle research laboratory at the University of Wisconsin and chairman of the Committee on Winter Driving Hazards of the National Safety Council.

He pointed out that the man behind the wheel of today's chrome-covered chariot—a vast improvement over the stiff-jointed youngster that clanked down dirt roads early this century, needs a lot of new knowledge to avoid accidents.

For one thing, Easton said, the greater acceleration of today's auto means increased danger, especially to winter drivers.

Light Touch Needed

Another new potential problem to winter drivers is the automatic transmission.

"An automatic transmission has to be handled with a light touch on slippery surfaces," he said. "It can be deceptive by shooting more power to the wheels than they'll take." The increased power of engines, too, makes wheel-spinning more common.

Power brakes also can be hazardous. "Drivers have to be extra cautious with braking if they have power brakes," Easton said. "A locked wheel provides little or no traction. And it's awfully easy, if you're not careful or don't know how to use power brakes properly, to lock the wheels."

Power Steering a Boon

Power steering is one innovation found in modern autos that's a boon to winter drives—if used properly. "It gives them greater control. The car with power steering is not so likely to be pulled into a snow drift.

"However, motorists should remember not to turn the wheel too quickly on slippery pavement. It can throw a car into a skid."

The Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards uses modern autos in all its tests, which it has conducted 13 times.

The autos present exactly the same problems to the 33-man committee as they do to Mr. Motorist. As a result of the tests, the committee has come up with a winter driving tip which it labels No. 1—slow down.

"Operate at a speed consistent with the hazards present," Easton said. "Drive slowly enough so you can stop safely."

The committee has other tips for motorists. For example:

If there's a chance of ice conditions, take along a set of tire chains for use in an emergency.

Choose Winners In Contest For Farm Calendar

A deluge of imaginative paintings by farm people has swamped the Illinois Agricultural association in a contest to choose six amateur paintings to illustrate the organization's 1959 calendar.

More than 500 paintings—sent to the statewide Farm Bureau from 45 county Farm Bureaus so far—have been entered by regular members, Mrs. Florence Thomas, director of Farm Bureau family activities for the IAA, said this week.

Other entries are expected before final judging by professional art critics. Heading the board of judges is Fred Sweet, member of the staff of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Top prize is $250. Five other prizes worth $50 each also are being offered. The top painting will become the property of the IAA, Mrs. Thomas explained, while the other five will remain the custody of the IAA as long as needed to have printing plates made.

Paintings which survive preliminary judging will be on display this week at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, where the IAA will be holding its 43rd annual meeting.

Believes Borrow Pits Will Become Beauty Spots

(CNS)—A county official scoffs at fears that borrow pits being carved out of the countryside will end up as abandoned eyesores rather than appealing residential-lake developments.

He is Andrew Plummer, assistant to Cook county highway superintendent William Mortimer. The two officials drafted the regulations which contractors must meet to obtain borrow pit permits.

Since May, more than two dozen permits have been issued to contractors who furnished proof that underground springs would transform the pits into lakes and who agreed to develop the areas for residences. Contractors want the earth and rock for fill in tollroad and other highway work.

For a long time the county had withheld issuance of the permits because of fears of protestors that the borrow pits would end up as garbage dumps or other eyesores.

Confident of Outcome

Fears have persisted. But Plummer says, "I'm sure all the lakes will be used and developed. I'll bet my last bottom dollar on it."

Worry on part of some landowners that the pits will be abandoned with no taxes paid all because the system is a "cheap way" to get the fill and "more than their money out of the land" was labeled "needless" by Plummer.

"The property is too expensive for a contractor to walk out on it," said Plummer. "I'm sure they'll have to develop the sites. If they don't, I know of plenty of people happy to take the land off their hands. Residential lake sites are too valuable."

Does the county have any legal guarantee the sites will be developed? How much of a bond must contractors put up?

Accents the Negative

The answers, respectively are no and nothing because the answer to another question is the negative. That is, does the county have a legal right to require either?

Plummer would have preferred to evade mention of this.

"But, the truth of the matter is," he said, "there's nothing in the county zoning ordinance that deals with lakes. They could have dug the pits anyway because this is a permitted use in a farming zone."

The county could have sat on such applications but in the end it would have meant a court test.

"And no court would uphold such tactics," Plummer said.

"This way we at least have control over the situation," he added.

FAMILY INCOME UP

Half of all U.S. families had a total income of $4,780 or more in 1956, 8 per cent over the 1955 figure, according to the Census Bureau. The bureau's figures were based on a median-numerical middle—rather than an average.

Since carbon monoxide is an odorless, tasteless, colorless killer, motorists should check their auto's exhaust system now and prepare for winter driving. With car windows rolled up during winter driving, the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning is present. Never warm up your car in a closed garage or drive with all windows completely closed, advises the Chicago Motor club.

FARM NEWS

For Cook County
by W.F. Whiteside

assistant farm adviser

One consideration in deciding whether or not to dry corn artificially is the amount of penalty in moisture discounts. These discounts can be determined by comparing the proceeds from the sale of wet corn, including discounts allowed, with the smaller quantity of dry corn. The formula for making these calculations is given in University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Circular 711 "When to Market Grain."

As your cows go into the barn for the winter—the season of highest feed and labor costs—take a careful inventory of your herd. Even though you have an abundance of silage, hay, and grain on hand, only cows that will produce at a relatively high level during the next six months will make a satisfactory return for feed and labor. In making your inventory, look for sows that can no longer produce profitably, mastitic or diseased cows, and low producers. Culling such animals is sound business.

This is the time of year when management problems should come in for a lot of attention on dairy farms. There are a lot of things to do and to think about that have a direct bearing on dairy farm income.

It takes a lot of dairy "know-how" to keep production up during the fall months. Many dairy-men are inclined to depend too much on late fall pasture or on pasturing corn stalks, with the result that production is lost that is usually not regained.

I have observed that the dairy-men who are most successful in maintaining production at high levels during the late pasture season are those who begin early to feed some silage, hay, and grain. This practice also has the advantage of making it possible to change gradually from pasture to winter feeds.

With arrival of the 1957 Illinois hunting season all hunters are urged to use common sense in handling guns, consider the safety of others and exercise good sportsmanship and good manners during their hunting expeditions.

About one-third of all the fatal shootings in 1956 occurred in connection with hunting trips.

You don't have to wait until spring to put fertilizer on your orchards. It will do just as much good this fall, and you'll probably have more time to do it.

Fertilizing in the fall gives nutrients plenty of time to penetrate the soil so that tree roots can use them. Since fruit trees are generally deep-rooted and have an active root system most of the year, they can be grown in soils of moderately low fertility provided drainage is adequate. However, many Illinois fruit growers use "complete" fertilizers to maintain a healthy cover crop.

Fruit trees usually need nitrogen, and you can often get pronounced results from using it. A good rule of thumb is 1/8 pound of ammonium nitrate per year of tree age. Put it on right after the leaves fall. Nitrogen put on this late won't stimulate growth that would be injured by an early freeze.

Keeping up with the Joneses isn't nearly so dangerous as trying to pass them on a hill.

Motorists who decorate their cars with paper pennants or other objects are not only endangering themselves, but they can unwittingly cause other motorists to become involved in a serious accident, says the Chicago Motor club. Decorations impede the driver's vision, and distract other motorists, setting the stage for an accident.

WTTW Plans Trip Thru Brookfield Zoo In Armchair

A new kind of safari thru the animal kingdom has been launched in Chicago by WTTW, Channel 11, Brookfield Zoo and the Educational Television and Radio Center.

Arrangements have been completed for Discovery at Brookfield Zoo, a series of 13 programs partially underwritten by a grant from the Chicago Zoological Society, to be produced at WTTW. By the summer of 1958 it will reach millions of viewers in the 26 cities making up the educational television network.

Brookfield zoo was selected because it has one of the most diversified and best exhibited zoological collections in the world, explained Dr. Harry K. Newburn, president of the Center.

The series is being written and produced by Mary Lela Grimes, who has become well known to educational TV circuits with two earlier "discovery" series, originating at WGBH-TV, Boston's educational station.

In addition to relationships of the zoos inhabitants, "discovery at Brookfield Zoo" will tell some of the strange stories of the discovery of some of these animals.

For example, "The Mystery of Muska," featuring one of the world's rarest animals, the okapi. In addition babirusas, tapirs, spiny ant-eaters, kudus, binturongs and a host of other creatures will join the better known lions, tigers, cheetahs and zebras, to star in dramas about themselves.

The programs will show how these animals are fitted to live in their specialized environments plus some spectacular ways in which they have adapted their habits to the quite different life of the zoo.

Business and Finance

MAURICE P. ANGLAND

All the leading financial sources are very much intrigued with the prospects of industrial growth which will, they believe, begin about 1960. Some sources refer to this period as the "Golden Sixties." The studious investor is, of course, looking for situations which offer a good long range profit potential.

Some years ago it was popular to define a successful investor as a man who "made shrewd business judgments on insufficient information." The idea being that by the time all the facts were widely known, the profit potential had narrowed considerably.

Today with the rules of the major stock exchanges and the Securities and Exchange Commission demanding full information from firms over which they have some control, the investor with a long range program and a willingness to study available facts, the "insufficient information" factor is minimized.

Research is today a really big factor in judging the investment position of industries and firms within those industries. An increasing number of investors look with favor only at those firms with an active research program.

The economics department of McGraw Hill Publishing Company prepared a careful report on the lag time between research and marketing of products resulting from such research. They found that it takes from four to six years to get a new product from the idea to the marketing stage and another two years before profitable marketing is achieved. On the average, it is seven years between the idea and successful marketing of that idea.

As of 1950 there was no such thing as a major appropriation by American industry for research. By 1953, our industries began putting large sums into organized research and it is expected that research expenditure in 1957 will be in excess of $10 billion and the total is increasing every day. The Internal Revenue Law now permits special credits for research expenditures in Income Tax.

It is impossible in this space to give even a brief coverage of products which can be expected due to research of a few years ago. The electronics field alone is tremendous. The developments in electronics would seem to make it more than merely a science or an industry but rather a new design for living.

The requirements of military activity under forced draft of defense needs, has resulted in many speed ups of invention and design in scientific fields as survival rather than ordinary economics of industrial profit, is paramount. These inventions and changes have often carried over to enrich and develop civilian activities. It is a very high price to pay, but development is there.

A new need for a more powerful fuel for missiles has brought out a new fuel much more powerful than the petroleum products previously used. It is known as a "Boron" fuel. This fuel may have, as its cost is reduced, a very important market in civilian activity. As of now, it has a very important place in military requirements. ing with the Thanksgiving theme for this month.

There are only two main sources of this fuel and entry of any added firms will require time to acquire the staff and considerable investment.

The two are Olin Mathieson and Callery Chemical Co. Callery Chemical is 75 per cent owned by Mine Safety Appliances and 25 percent owned by Gulf Oil with Gulf Oil having an option to buy an added 25 per cent. Mine Safety has only 302,000 shares and, naturally, success in the Boron field would be more quickly reflected than in Olin Industries, with 13 1/2 million shares.

Read John 14:27-31.

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give you. John 14:27.)

Spending a few days with her relatives, a girl was impressed by the peaceful atmosphere of their Christian home. On returning to her own home at the end of her vacation, she did not hesitate to ask, "Mother, why don't you and father live like Auntie and Uncle?"

The mother, finding herself unprepared for such a question, gave the answer, "You see, dear, they are Christians. Their way is different from ours."

Christianity is called the religion of peace. It is sad to think that many of us who profess to be Christians do not prove ourselves tolerant, loving, and forgiving. Ought we not to be more eager to spread peace than dissensions? To create love rather than express anger? The Bible tells us, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee."

PRAYER

O God of Peace, help us so to live that we set an example of Christian love and unity in this world so divided and troubled. May we never lose that peace which Christ grants us, but in all our trials, remember His unfailing assurance, "I will not leave you comfortless." In His name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Man is kept in perfect peace when his mind is stayed on God.

Public Lax In Fight To Preserve Its Freedoms, Survey Discloses

(Editor's Note: The following article appeared in the October issue of THE AMERICAN PRESS, a magazine principally devoted to the interest of weekly newspapers. We had read other sources giving similar findings and this trend—we hope it is not growing—by the public to sacrifice its right to know is quite frightening. Dictatorship has never been able to flourish in any land where the people have been kept informed of public affairs by an unfettered press. In those lands where the press is muzzled or subsidized by the government, dictatorship thrives. The American press, which is free of government subsidy or control, would keep that way so that it can fulfill its mission. Freedom of the press is the right of the press to keep the public fully informed on public affairs.)

Quoting from recent studies and surveys on the attitude of the public toward freedom in general and freedom of the press in particular, Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the school of journalism of the University of Iowa, in addressing the Rochester Photo Conference at the George Eastman House, Rochester, N. Y., warned that the public was certainly "not on the battle line" doing anything toward preserving our freedoms.

Urging newspaper editors to do more to stir up their readers on the needs for more active effort preserve our freedom, Prof. Moeller gave the following information to indicate the present attitude.

"In a survey at the State University of Iowa, Prof. Charles E. Swanson found that 94.49 per cent of a sample of 373 citizens in a city of some 50,000 believe the newspaper should 'print all ideas and opinions.' However, the percentages change sharply when the points become specific.

"Only 82.3 per cent think the news paper should be allowed to criticize a book or movie; only 75.9 per cent would allow the paper to attack the mayor; only 64.8 per cent would permit the paper to attack the president; only 58.2 per cent would permit criticizing the labor policy of an employer; only 56.0 per cent would allow the paper to attack local labor unions; only 54.2 per cent would print divorce hearings; only 53.3 per cent would print pictures of bodies of dead people; only 50.7 per cent would permit the paper to criticize the quality of gasoline, and only 35.9 per cent would allow reproduction of a painting of a nude.

"The attitudes of the young people are also disturbing. Not long ago the Purdue University Public Opinion Poll asked high school students several questions in the area of freedom and civil liberty. These three thousand students were presented with the statement, 'Newspaper and magazines should be allowed to print anything they want except military secrets.' Only 45 per cent give the answer 'yes', 41 per cent give the answer 'no'. The remaining 14 per cent are uncertain.

"34 per cent say that the government should prohibit some people from making public speeches; only 53 per cent disagree and support the principle of free speech, while 13 per cent are uncertain.

"26 per cent believe the police should be allowed to search a person or his home without a warrant.

"25 per cent would prohibit the right of the people to assemble peaceably; these young people say that some groups should not be allowed to hold public meetings.

"17 per cent say that local police may be right in holding persons in jail without telling them of any formal charge against them.

"58 per cent agree that police may be justified in giving a man the 'third degree' to make him talk.

"34 per cent would deny citizens the right to circulate petitions in some cases, and 32 per cent are uncertain on this point.

"60 per cent say that police and other groups should have the right to censor or ban books and movies when they see fit.

"49 per cent believe that large masses of the people are incapable of determining what is and what is not good for them—which is a rather vigorous rejection of the principle of democratic government.

"It is obvious that these young people do not believe very wholeheartedly in the Bill of Rights—or at least they do not think of the Bill of Rights as something that applies in everyday life.

"Dr. George Gallup has asked Americans about the use of the right of free speech. He found that 92 per cent of those questioned had a more or less clear understanding of the expression. Of this group, only 50 per cent were in favor of "freedom of speech for everybody—that is, for example, permitting anyone to say anything at any time about our government or our country." 45 per cent would limit or qualify this right; 5 per cent are undecided.

"So it appears that many, many of the freedoms, and that they are too often afraid to speak up and to speak out. It appears too that they are not very concerned about maintaining true freedom of the press, and that a great many of them are indeed willing to restrict it sharply."

Women Can Get Social Security Payments When 62 Years of Age

Social security insurance benefits are now payable to women, otherwise eligible, at age 62 instead of of age 65. These monthly benefits are retroactive for 1 year at most, and the beginning date was November, 1956. This means that you will have until November, 1957 to file in order for your benefits to start with a payment for November, 1956, according to Cornelius R. Schafer, manager of the District Social Security Office, Harvey.

If you are between the age of 62 and 65, and are a woman worker or the wife of a retired worker, you have an important choice to make.

If you choose to take the payments before you reach 65, you must take a reduced payment. The amount of the reduction depends on the number of months between the time you start getting benefits and the month before you reach 65. You, therefore, must decide whether you wish to receive benefits at a somewhat lower rate beginning earlier or wait and take a higher rate later on. Once you take the lower rate, the benefits are not increased when you become 65.

Some examples of the rates are as follows:

WOMAN WORKER
Average Monthly Earnings	If you take benefits at age:
After 50	62	63	64	65
$ 56.00	$24.00	$26.00	$28.00	$30.00
150.00	54.80	59.60	64.00	68.50
250.00	70.80	76.70	82.60	88.50
350.00	86.80	94.10	101.30	108.50

WIFE'S BENEFITS
Husband's Avg. Monthly Wage after 1950	Husband's Benefit at Age 65	If you take benefits at age:
		62	63	64	65
$ 50.00	$ 30.00	$11.30	$12.50	$13.80	$15.00
150.00	68.50	25.80	28.60	31.50	34.30
250.00	88.50	33.30	37.00	40.70	44.30
350.00	108.50	40.80	45.30	49.80	54.30

If you otherwise qualify for benefits as the widow of a deceased worker, or as the female dependent parent of a deceased worker, your benefits are payable at age 62 without reduction.

Remember the first month for which these benefits are payable is November 1956, but they are retroactive for only one year. So if you feel you can qualify, you should visit the social security district office before November 30, 1957.

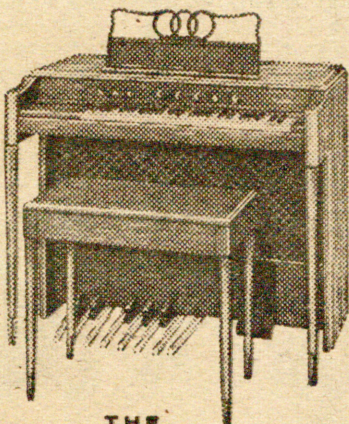

"Life begins at forty" could well be the by-line for Kansas' fabulous El Dorado oil field, proving ground for many oil production "firsts." It has threatened to go dry several times since its discovery in 1915, but each time resourceful oil men have found new and improved ways of renewing its lease on life. Now, 42 years later, the field is one of the state's major producers, having produced 225 million barrels of oil to date. Engineers estimate the field is good for another 12.6 million barrels, which is enough to take New York's 4,115,895 autos all the way to Pasadena and back — three times!

One of the largest uses of nickel-plating is in the decorative field, where in combination with a thin coat of chromium, its resistance to corrosion and wear gives a permanent, lustrous metallic finish. Nickel-plating is also employed extensively for electroforming, particularly in the manufacture of plastic dies, where high strength and wear resistance are required. The corrosion-resistance and non-toxicity of nickel make it useful for plating vessels used in the food processing industry. Another important application, in which electrodeposited nickel of high hardness is utilized, is the building up of surfaces of machine parts which have either been initially over machined or worn in service.

Lowering tire pressure in the belief that more traction will be obtained is not recommended with today's extra-low-pressure tires, the National Safety Council advises.
